Steps to Conduct Research:

- Wear is defined as a process where interaction between two surfaces or bounding faces of solids within the working environment results in dimensional loss of one solid, with or without any actual decoupling and loss of material (Ma et al 2008).
- Some commonly referred to wear mechanisms include erosive wear, surface fatigue, fretting wear, adhesive wear, abrasive wear and sliding wear.
- The sliding wear is the most important from the technological point of view.
- This sliding wear can be checked with a set up known as pin-on-disc, which is standardised by
